CLARK FIELD CAPTURED IN AMERICAN DRIVE ALONG ROAD TO MANILA

pones continued their grudging retreat on most sectors of the Burma theater, falling back toward Mandalay and Rangoon.

Two weeks of American re-invasion of Luzon Island in the Philippines has cost Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita at least 6,449 men killed against 657 American dead. Another 2,301 more Yanks were wounded and 187 are missing. This is a total of 3,145 casualties compared to an estimated 14,000 for the Japanese, including 7,200 wounded and the unusually high number of 422 prisoners.

The motorized 14th Army Corps, now approximately 50 miles from Manila, rolled across the undefended elaborate fortifications along the Bamban River after only a brief skirmish with Japanese rear guards.

This was the second well-prepared natural defense line that the enemy abandoned without a fight. The town was virtually razed by Yamashita's scorched earth policy.

Little artillery spotter planes were using Bamban airfield, one of the major satellites of Clark Field, before ground forces reached it. Forty wrecked enemy aircraft littered runways.

Motorized patrols reached the vicinity of the field Wednesday morning (Manila time), without fighting anything stronger than small Japanese skirmishing parties.

This swift advance toward Manila is getting the headlines but the war is being fought on the northeast flank. Virtually no gains were reported on this sector where most casualties have been suffered.

Warships renewed their bombardment of Rosario, pivotal town on which both Japanese and American artillery have been firing for a week.

Philippines-based aircraft bombed Corregidor, ancient island fortress at the gates of Manila Bay. Others made their most extensive sweep over Formosa, the Pescadores and the Ryukyu Islands which guard the China coast.

Tokyo reported a task force of twelve cruisers and destroyers shelled Iwo, on another approach to Tokyo. "Slight damage" was admitted to the island where superbomb caused big explosions.

Varying Japanese reports listed 120 and 200 planes in the attack on the Palembang sector of Sumatra. Japanese headquarters claimed 78 were shot down and 14 Nipponese planes lost.

He has 1,100 flying hours to his credit, 300 on combat missions. His record also includes piloting his own plane on 30 combat missions.

The nomination goes automatically to the Senate Military Committee, which voted only last Monday to inquire into the whole priority practice as well as the dog incident itself. The committee recommends for or against confirmation of such nominations.

"For I can tell you here and now that if the RFC is left in the commerce department, I will use its powers in the interests of all the American people."

Jones, who testified yesterday, had termed Wallace "not qualified" for the combination posts that have been held by the Texan.

Wallace said talk of his lack of experience—words used by Jones—"does not fool either me or the American people."

"It is not a question of lack of experience," he said. "Rather it is a case of not liking the experience that I have had."

Senators Pepper (D-Fla.) and Murray (D-Mont.) Wallace supporters, huddled over a pile of books before the testimony began.

A. the senate hearing progressed, it was learned that CIO President Philip Murray had written all CIO-affiliated unions to support Wallace's confirmation and to oppose separation from the commerce department.

The proposed legislation was authored by Senators Fred G. Reiners, Cincinnati Republican, and Maurice W. Lipscher, Democrat from Youngstown, who defined group libel as:

"A malicious publication by writing, printing, picture, effigy or other representation, or by any form of radio broadcasting, which tends to expose persons designated, identified or characterized therein by race or religion . . . to hatred, contempt, ridicule or obloquy, or tends to cause such persons to be shunned or avoided or to be injured in their business, profession or occupation."

Since President Roosevelt nominated the former vice president to hold the combined job of loan administrator and secretary, firing Jones from the cabinet, Wallace has a vital interest. The question is whether if confirmed as commerce secretary he will also have control over the RFC's $4-billion financial realm.

Witnesses before Senate committees are supposed to confine their testimony to the legislation under consideration. But Jones, endorsing the bill yesterday, threw one punch after another at Wallace from the witness chair.

No one had any doubt who Jones was talking about when he commented:

"Certainly the RFC should not be placed under the supervision of any man willing to jeopardize the country's future with untried ideas and unrealistic schemes."

"It is my firm conviction that the government's investment in plants and facilities, and in raw materials of all sorts, should not be made the subject of careless experimentation."

The hearing shaped up as one as much on Wallace's qualifications as on the resolution which Senator George (D-Ga.) introduced. The Wallace nomination has been tucked away for the time being and Sen. Pepper (D-Fla.), a Wallace backer, expressed concern that the purpose is to keep it there until the George bill is disposed of.

One of the senators, unwilling to be quoted by name, and opposed to letting Wallace have the lending powers estimated at least 50 of the 96 Senate votes would be cast against Wallace's confirmation if the nomination were

LITTLE WATER IS PENETRATING FROZEN GROUND

Plenty of Ice and Snow To Increase Water Supply When It Melts

So far the thawing of the great sheet of snow and ice that covers the community has not been of sufficient length to cause much influence on the water supply, and, as a matter of fact, the city's water supply is just as low or possibly lower than ever and is coming from the deep wells.

Farm wells generally that went dry last fall, are still dry and the frozen soil and the fact that the ice has not melted to furnish an abundance of water have combined to prevent deep penetration of the water.

Also a great deal of ice and snow have evaporated and the water has been lost in that way.

With a few days thus, it is expected that streams generally will be running bank full and that the general water table will rise quickly near the streams, and that wells will once more show a supply of water adequate to meet farm demands.

During the six weeks of snow and ice, melting has been frequent, and invariably has been followed at night by freezing temperatures which left the water on the surface.

This freezing and thawing has resulted in nearly all of the snow being turned to ice.

W. B. HYER HONORED AGAIN BY EAGLES

Dinner, Vaudeville Held at Lodge Wednesday

The last half of W. B. (Doc) Hyer's birthday party at the Eagles lodge here was a fried chicken dinner and vaudeville show Wednesday night. The first half of the party was an initiation in Hyer's honor Tuesday. He is state president of the Eagles.

After the chicken dinner was served to nearly 400, Hyer spoke briefly to the group. He was introduced by C. F. Wile.

The vaudeville troupe, headlined by Hugo Keys and his piano playing, included varied musical numbers plus magician's act.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche said today Ohio's six state universities are requesting $6,000,000 more in appropriations for the next two years than they had during the current biennium.

The governor said the requests of the universities were outlined to him and members of his cabinet at a meeting with school officials last night.

Pointing out that an increase of $13,000,000 also is being sought for elementary schools, the governor said today that, "from these large requests, it is manifest that there must be substantial cuts or the state will be operating at a deficit."

"There will be no deficit," he added.

The universities are asking that their appropriations be hiked from $17,000,461 to $23,090,461 with $4,076,846 of the boost to go for salary increases and $1,923,154 to go for maintenance and expansion.

The increases sought by the individual schools are:

Bowling Green State University, $366,000; Kent State University, $486,000; Miami University, $612,000; Ohio University, $672,000; Wilberforce University, $244,000 and Ohio State University, $3,600,000.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The great Red offensive by hastening the end of the European war—as it obviously is doing—is piling up pressing political problems for the Big Three, and one of these has to do with the turbulent Balkans where several thrones are rocking in a strong wind which blows from off the Russian steppes.

Among the most urgent situations is that involving the battle of young King Peter of Yugoslavia to hang onto his royal prerogatives in the face of powerful opposition among his subjects. Any quarrel in the Balkans is dangerous, for this cockpit of southeastern Europe long has been the whirling ground of far-reaching trouble, and Yugoslavia is a hot spot. Thus, a couple of days ago we saw acting secretary of state Grew call on the rival Yugoslav factions to reach an agreement.

There actually are two Yugoslav governments because of the split. There is the government headed by Marshal Tito, who takes inspiration from Moscow and who in fact controls Yugoslavia both militarily and politically. Then there is the so-called exile government in London, headed by Premier Subasic, and this has been the government of King Peter until the other day when he fired it, or tried to.

What happened was that Subasic, being practical minded, got together with Tito and they agreed to form a single government under a regency, with the understanding that a plebiscite would be held after the war to decide whether the country wanted to continue the monarchy or substitute some other form of government. Peter refused to accept a regency, despite strong advice from British Prime Minister Churchill, and tried unsuccessfully to dismiss Subasic and his ministers. They declined to be dismissed.

Here enters Mr. Grew, and it would seem that his message may have had a quick reaction, for Peter today is reported striving to effect a compromise with Subasic. It's said the king wants his premier to resign and then form another government which will include some of the staunchest supporters of the monarchy. However, diplomatic observers believe the king's effort would fail, and that Subasic would proceed to Belgrade and there establish a coalition government with Tito.

As a matter of fact, the way things now stand Peter hasn't much chance of hanging onto his throne. There will be a plebiscite in due course, but the matter would seem to be settled in advance—just as the Polish crisis has been determined. Marshal Tito, working with the friendly hand of Moscow on his shoulder, is in control of Yugoslavia, and his government is strongly leftist. Many of his followers are Communists. Others are of various shades of red but in any event appear to have small use for the monarchy.

One of the factors working against the throne is the attitude developed by young Peter himself. When I was in Yugoslavia just before the war, the country was loud in praise of the promising youngster who would mount the throne when he came of age. However, since assuming the crown he has encountered influences which were inimical to his own interests. And he has taken some bad advice.

Then there's another point, not generally known. Prince Paul, who was regent of Yugoslavia until Peter came of age, has the blood of the Russian Czars in his veins, and for years maintained a hostile attitude toward Soviet Moscow. More than that, so I've been informed by an unimpeachable source, Prince Paul has had dreams of ruling from a restored Czarist throne.

It would be difficult, it strikes me, to think of anything which would make the Yugoslav monarchy less agreeable to Moscow. So on the whole the cards are against Peter.

L.T. CHAS. M'Coy SEEN TO BAIL OUT OF BOMBER

Reported Missing, He Is Now Believed To Be Safe in Czechoslovakia

Lieut. Charles M. McCoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McCoy, of near this city, who was reported missing in action December 25, is believed to have escaped when his bomber was damaged over Czechoslovakia, according to a letter received from Maj. Gen. N. F. Twining of the Fifteenth Air Force.

The bomber contained 11 crewmen including Bombardier McCoy and the letter states that all of the crew was seen to bail out near Banska Bystrica, when the bomber lagged behind the formation.

This would indicate that Lieut. McCoy escaped and either is held prisoner by the Germans or is in the friendly hands of the Czechs.

The letter containing the good news was received by his parents Wednesday, and reads as follows:

"Heavy bombardment planes of this command attacked important enemy installations at Blechhammer, Germany, on December 12, 1944. While participating in this operation, the Liberator on which your son, Second Lieutenant Charles M. McCoy, 0-768873, served as bombardier became disabled enroute to the target and was forced to fall out of formation in the general vicinity of Banska Bystrica, Czechoslovakia. The damaged plane fell behind the formation slowly, but before it passed from view 11 parachutes were seen to emerge.

No further particulars are available at this time but you may rest assured that the War Department will notify you as soon as additional details are received.

"Charles' personal effects have been assembled for shipment to the Effects Quartermaster, Army Effects Bureau, Kansas City, Mo., and from that point they will be forwarded to the designated beneficiary.

"Much of the credit for our recent successes must be given to the men like your son who subordinate their sense of personal safety in an effort to bring about an early conclusion to this struggle which engages us all. I hope we shall soon receive conclusive evidence of his safety."

TRAINING OPPOSED BY CHURCH COUNCIL

CLEVELAND, Jan. 25.—(P)—The Congregational Christian Churches' Council for Social Action today opposed enactment of peacetime military conscription laws, and told the denomination's annual missions meeting:

"Such an act now may hinder rather than help mutual confidence between the big powers as well as relations affecting the smaller nations."

The Council also maintained that, while world security proposals drafted at Dumbarton Oaks contain imperfections, the United States should participate in some form of international organization.

Washington C.H. Soldier Fights With Third Army

T-Sgt. Paul Anschutz

The back end of an American light tank seems like a soft seat to T-Sgt. Paul (Poss) Anschutz as he goes back from the battle lines somewhere along on the Western Front, tired and dirty and still clutching his ever-present rifle after days under fire in the fierce fighting that drove the Germans back inside their own borders. This and other pictures he has sent back, his face plainly shows the strain of weeks of combat which has won for him the prized Combat Infantryman Badge.

T-Sgt. Paul (Poss) Anschutz, who not so many years ago was a whiz in basketball, baseball and football here, today is playing a much more grim game and on a very different away-from-home field.

An infantryman in the famous fighting 33rd Division of Gen. George (Blood and Guts) Patton's rugged Third Army, "Poss" Anschutz hit the beaches of Normandy seven months ago and has battled with American doughboys across shell-battered and bomb-cratered France and Luxembourg into Germany, then backed out to help smash the German drive into Belgium. Just where he is now is uncertain but his wife, who is holding up his end of the family's war effort by working at the API, the city's biggest war plant, believes he either is still in Belgium or back in Germany again.

There have been no soft spots in this war for him. He has been in the service 27 months now, ten of them have been overseas. After getting his basic training at Camp Atterbury, Ind., and Camp Breckinridge, Ky., he went across to England to await D-day. Once the fighting started in Europe, he was in the thick of it. He wears the Combat Infantryman Badge for "superior performance of duty while in

Murray's Proposal

We readily confess that we very seldom have agreed with the attitude or proposals of CIO President Philip Murray, especially with reference to some of his labor policies forced upon the government such as the un-American closed shop and forced collection of union dues by industry, but this does not eliminate proper consideration of any good suggestion he makes. We consider his recent letter to War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes a most excellent proposal.

In this letter Murray is quoted as saying, "The sole question before the American people today is the most efficient method of obtaining the manpower necessary to produce the war materials that we need."

Mr. Murray does not believe that national service legislation is that most efficient method. A great many Americans disagree with him. Nevertheless his summing up of the situation is admirable—admirable because in its simplicity and obviousness it is so far removed from some of the methods which congress and other government officials seem to be planning.

Even more admirable is the proposal of Mr. Murray that Mr. Byrnes call immediately a conference of leaders from industry, labor, agriculture and government (including, it may be hoped, members of congress) to make an intelligent, orderly inquiry into manpower needs.

Their task would be to find out precisely where production is short; to promote efficient utilization of manpower and facilities; to inquire into standard pay and discrimination as possible causes of shortages; to make equitable arrangements for transfer of workers to tight-labor areas; to try to put an end to overlapping and contradictory policies and operations of too many government agencies.

Such a conference is long overdue. There has been too much playing off of one group against another by the government. There have been too many and too frequent disagreements between government agencies which often seem more concerned with their own power and prestige than with the problem at hand. There have been too many occasions when agencies have been unwilling to consult with production or labor experts outside of government before issuing orders which often have turned out to be unfair or unworkable.

This conference would not solve the country's manpower and production problems. But it is a necessary preliminary to their solution. Dollar-a-year men, drafted from their private pursuits, have done an appreciated and generally excellent job. But in the Washington atmosphere of conflict, confusion and limitation, they have not done excellently enough.

The situation needs men fresh from their non-government jobs, who have coped with today's problems at their point of impact, who are not afflicted "Potomac fever," or "socialitis" and who can pass along to the conference's govern-

Mr. Murray does not believe that national service legislation is that most efficient method. A great many Americans disagree with him. Nevertheless his summing up of the situation is admirable—admirable because in its simplicity and obviousness it is so far removed from some of the methods which congress and other government officials seem to be planning.

Even more admirable is the proposal of Mr. Murray that Mr. Byrnes call immediately a conference of leaders from industry, labor, agriculture and government (including, it may be hoped, members of congress) to make an intelligent, orderly inquiry into manpower needs.

Their task would be to find out precisely where production is short; to promote efficient utilization of manpower and facilities; to inquire into standard pay and discrimination as possible causes of shortages; to make equitable arrangements for transfer of workers to tight-labor areas; to try to put an end to overlapping and contradictory policies and operations of too many government agencies.

Such a conference is long overdue. There has been too much playing off of one group against another by the government. There have been too many and too frequent disagreements between government agencies which often seem more concerned with their own power and prestige than with the problem at hand. There have been too many occasions when agencies have been unwilling to consult with production or labor experts outside of government before issuing orders which often have turned out to be unfair or unworkable.

This conference would not solve the country's manpower and production problems. But it is a necessary preliminary to their solution. Dollar-a-year men, drafted from their private pursuits, have done an appreciated and generally excellent job. But in the Washington atmosphere of conflict, confusion and limitation, they have not done excellently enough.

The situation needs men fresh from their non-government jobs, who have coped with today's problems at their point of impact, who are not afflicted "Potomac fever," or "socialitis" and who can pass along to the conference's govern-

Murray's Proposal

We readily confess that we very seldom have agreed with the attitude or proposals of CIO President Philip Murray, especially with reference to some of his labor policies forced upon the government such as the un-American closed shop and forced collection of union dues by industry, but this does not eliminate proper consideration of any good suggestion he makes. We consider his recent letter to War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes a most excellent proposal.

In this letter Murray is quoted as saying, "The sole question before the American people today is the most efficient method of obtaining the manpower necessary to produce the war materials that we need."

We do not think that Mr. Murray would disagree that the most efficient method of relieving our present shortages is through the democratic method of every citizen's doing his part in this war. Worthy of Help

If you have not yet made your contribution to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis it is time that you do so. The cause is extremely worthy of the support of all of us.

A little dime, dropped into a March of Dimes container, becomes a powerful destruction against a giant enemy—influenza.

It is the combined power of millions and millions of dimes—and larger amounts, as may be afforded—that makes it possible for every victim of paralysis, regardless of age, race, creed or color to receive the best medical care available.

When Ohio was struck last year by the serious epidemic, money was on hand to provide early medical care. In many cases, this may mean the difference between a life of crippling or normal recovery. We must support the 1945 March of Dimes, to guard against future epidemics, which strike without warning and with devastating effect.

Half of the funds raised remain in this county for local needs, the other half being sent to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., which in turn disburses it in grants for research and epidemic service, including sending of doctors, nurses, respirators, physical therapy technicians, supplies and financial aid to stricken communities.

Washington at a Glance

WASHINGTON — The Veterans Administration is almost ready to cut loose another phase of the GI Bill of Rights—loans to veterans who want to go into business for themselves.

As I pointed out some days ago in discussing the loans for farms and farm improvements, these GI Bill of Rights loans are going to be tough to get. There is a discouraging amount of red tape involved and some injustices are certain to follow. This is a point of two-pronged caution: to protect the veteran and to protect Uncle Sam.

These loans aren't a dole, bonus or any other kind of gift. If a veteran wants to wander off in his foxhole dreams without any other equipment than hope and a hazy idea, he'll have to get his money elsewhere.

These are hard-listed business loans, designed to assure a competent veteran that if money is his only obstacle, he can have that to get back on his feet in a individual enterprise.

All other things being equal, the loans are "easy money." The government will guarantee half the loan up to $4,000 (that is to total amount of $2,000 and will pay the interest for the first year).

Bear in mind that in none of these cases does the government make any direct loan. The lender may be a bank, savings and loan association, insurance or mortgage companies, a private investor, friend or relative of the veteran, or even an owner of a business selling out to a veteran. Those are the ones who have to put up the money. The government merely acts as guarantor.

The veteran must be honorably discharged after 90 days' service (unless he was discharged in less time than that for service connected disabilities). He must prove that there is a reasonable assurance of his success. The business, its location, and the properties involved must be thoroughly investigated to make certain there is reasonable expectation of a good return on the investment. The veteran's ability, integrity and credit record have to measure up.

The loans can't be used to buy inventories on the shelves or as working capital, such as meeting the weekly or monthly payroll. They can't even be used to put new stocks on the shelves.

If you are beginning to wonder what the loans are good for, discuss it with any banker, investor, or business man. They can be used for the purchase of property, buildings, tools, machinery and a number of other things that are necessary to establish a business or take over an old one and perhaps change its output or service.

There's one more thing. The business must be personally conducted; or if it's a partnership, the veteran must have an active part in the management.

If all these requirements are met, there's little possibility that the veteran will get stung—or Uncle Sam either,

Spacious Craig Home Is Setting for Gay Nineties Program Given by Cecilians

More than half a hundred members and guests were welcomed to the January meeting of the Cecilian Club at the home of Mrs. Walter Craig on East Street—a meeting that captured musically the spirit of the Gay Nineties.

Mrs. J. Rankin Paul, president, welcomed the guests with a few gracious words, saying how appropriate it was to hold the Gay Nineties meeting in the Craig home.

Mrs. Tom Bush, program chairman for the evening, spoke of the varied selections from music of the Gay Nineties period, the theme of the meeting. She explained that the Gay Nineties were so called because they followed the depression of the 1880's. The lifting spirit of the decade was reflected in its music, she said.

First number on the program was two solos by Mrs. Fred Eissen. Her interpretation of "I've Something To Tell You" by Fanning and "In Old Madrid" by Trotter, two songs utterly different in mood, was a sensitive one. She was accompanied by Mrs. Paul.

A quartet, Mrs. Charles Hire, Rev. John K. Abernethy and Mr. and Mrs. Rankin Paul, sang two songs which are among the most familiar music of the decade represented. "When You and I Were Young Maggie" and "Silver Threads Among the Gold" were presented in true Gay Nineties tradition. Both familiar melodies, the arrangement of harmony showed an understanding of the spirit of the songs. Mrs. Marian Gage played piano accompaniment.

The well-loved and well-known hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee" also was a product of the Gay Nineties. It was included on the program as a well-played piano duet by Miss Mary Jane Townsley and Mrs. Leonard Korn.

Two piano solos of decidedly different types were played beautifully by Miss Mary Elizabeth Wood. Her selections were "Starlight Meditation" and "Cotton Pickers."

Miss Edith Gardner's account of Gay Nineties' music as she knew it was a deeply interesting account of the well balanced program.

Told in her inimitable style, Miss Gardner related her musical experiences during a two-year stay in Europe.

She told of the La Scala Opera House in Milan, Italy, which gave open sesame anywhere in the world to artists who appeared on its stage.

The glittering $10,000,000 Grand Opera House in Paris, with its magnificently dressed audiences who heard outstanding operas there, she also described. In London, Covent Garden was the mecca for outstanding artists of the period, Miss Gardner said.

She told how only the foremost artists had an opportunity for a hearing there. Orchestral concerts of program music in London auditoriums also were described by Miss Gardner.

Miss Gardner had an opportunity to glimpse royal grandeur while in London and she told of the magnificence of the Queen's drawing room and of seeing Queen Victoria herself with her daughter, Beatrice, as they started for a drive.

Bringing her subject nearer home, Miss Gardner spoke of the May Festival in Cincinnati, its contributions to American music and its standing as a musical event. The chorus there was termed one of the best in the world.

Leonard Korn's two solos, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" and "Love's Old Sweet Song," were particularly well sung and appreciatively received by the audience. Mrs. Korn played his accompaniment.

Closing the program on a patriotic note, Miss Wood and Miss Mary Elizabeth Browning played Sousa's stirring march, "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

The entire program was presented in the spacious living room of the Craig home. Chairs grouped informally about afforded the listeners an intimate and comfortable opportunity to enjoy the performers. A colorful arrangement of cut flowers enhanced the setting.

Besides Mrs. Bush, the program committee was Mrs. Otis B. Core, Mrs. Leonard R. Korn, Mrs. J. Rankin Paul, Mrs. M. Grove Davis, Miss Mary Elizabeth Wood and Miss Mary Jane Townsley.

After the delightful program, the members and guests were invited to a tastefully arranged dining table for tempting refreshments. The table was centered with an arrangement of fruit flanked by two red candles in silver holders. Mrs. Paul and

Bride-Elect Is Feted Wednesday At Pretty Shower

One of the gayest of parties was held at the YWCA in Columbus, Wednesday evening when Miss Mary Jean Williams, bride-elect of Ray Jennings of Port Columbus was feted at a miscellaneous shower by Misses Catherine Corcoran and Opal Bethel.

Six tables of smartly frocked guests were assembled by the co-hostesses for the affair which included as guests from here Mrs. M. K. Evans, Miss Clara Belle Robinson, Miss Laura Schadel and Mrs. Edward L. Williams. Miss Hilda Lee Evans, a student at Ohio State University joined the guests for the evening.

The music room of the YWCA was the scene of the party where a large table was centered with a blue and white crepe paper umbrella beneath which was arranged a large assortment of miscellaneous gifts. Following a gala hour of informal visiting among the guests, Miss Williams was invited to the table where she graciously opened her gifts. She responded in her own personable manner to each guest.

A dainty dessert collation was served by the co-hostesses later in the evening from a buffet which was centered with a large, nicely iced cake and flanked by seven-branch candleabra where pink tapers turned softly over the large group of young women.

A pastel theme was used in the decorating with placecards being fashioned of individual bridal nut cups. Coffee was dispensed from a large silver coffee service.

This is the first in a series of parties planned by Columbus friends of the bride-elect, who is the daughter of Mrs. E. L. Williams of this city.

LOCAL MEN HELP BREAK VAUNTED 'GOTHIC LINE'

With Noted 'Polar Bear' Regiment Fighting in Northern Italy

(Special to the Record-Herald)

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY, Italy—Cpl. Walter S. Donohoe, son of Mrs. Lydia Donohoe, 212 West Market Street, basic, and Pvt. Curtis E. Lacey, son of Ben O. Lacey, route 2, rifleman, are members of the 339th "Polar Bear" Regiment, which recently shattered the vital of the vaunted Gothic Line, taking Italian peaks as high as 3400 feet east of Highway 65 and Futa Pass.

The 339th Infantry Regiment is in the 85th "Custer" Division, part of Lt. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott, Jr.'s Fifth Army.

The 339th landed in Italy last March 15 after a training period in North Africa, and was the first unit of the 85th Division in the line when it was committed to action the following day.

Under command of Col. Brooklyn W. Brady, Los Angeles, Calif., the "Polar Bears" have repeatedly captured strong cores of enemy resistance, rocky mountain peaks above the cloud level and strong points nestled behind curtains of intense fire, minefields, barbed wire and earthworks.

When the Fifth Army offensive opened up last May 11, the 339th raced ahead on the Tyrrhenian Sea coast, shattering its objective in the Gustav Line. Having passed through Scauri, Formia, Itri and Fondi in rapid succession, the 339th, supplied by mule and human pack trains, passed 12 miles undetected over rugged mountain terrain and surprised the strongly fortified hillside town of Sonnino. The Sonnino garrison was completely cut off and Highway 7 thus sealed off south of the Pontine Marshes.

The 339th passed through Rome June 5, crossed the Tiber River and took a brief rest. It went back into the line to hold a stretch along the Arno River near Florence.

In crossing the Gothic Line, the 339th broke through at some of the most firmly held points, moved on to capture Mt. Freina and Mt. Coloreta, dominating Firenzuola, and subsequently took Mt. LaFine, Mt. Ribe and Castelvecchio.

Col. William T. Pitts, Jr., Warrenton, N. C., recently took command of the 339th.

The "Polar Bears" got their name in the World War, when they fought in waist-deep snow along the 400-mile front between Archangel and Leningrad in Russia. They battled on five months after the armistice had ended the war in Europe.

Reactivated in the spring of 1942, the 339th for 18 months trained and participated in maneuvers in Mississippi, Louisiana and California. The regiment landed in North Africa in the fall of 1943.

SHORTAGE OF WATER IN OHIO EMPHASIZED BY CRISIS IN COLUMBUS

sent here by the War Production Board, were to confer on the crisis today. Mayor Rhodes said the WPA official would help decide which war plants would suspend operations if the water shortage necessitated general shutdowns.

Firemen reported that water pressure was sufficient last night when they extinguished a three-alarm fire in a downtown grocery store.

Mayor Rhodes ordered all non-essential industries to close after water pressure failed yesterday at the huge Curtiss-Wright plant.

City schools also shut down until Monday, at least, and laundries, hotels, business places and homes were admonished to use as little water as possible during the emergency.

Rhodes expressed concern over the danger of possible fires, especially in residential areas, and said steps were being taken to augment water supplies.

Officials of the State Water Supply Board observed that several other Ohio cities faced a similar plight because of inadequate water storage facilities to meet emergencies.

David A. Harker, the board's chief of staff, said Columbus was advised last September that its water supply was inadequate for emergencies such as the 1934 drought and that dredging of reservoirs had been suggested for increased storage capacity.

Lima was virtually without water early this month when supplies were used to fight a hotel fire there. Harker recalled. A quarry and industrial wells were tapped to supply the city.

Springfield, Harker said, is preparing to sink a test well some 400 to 500 feet into the bed of a long-buried glacial river channel in a search for increased water supplies.

Additional towns in the same predicament, he added, include Dayton, Norwalk, Hamilton, Middletown, Washington C. H., Coshocton, Crestline, Oak Hill and Hillsboro.

Harker pointed to Akron, Youngstown and Niles which he said had insured themselves an adequate surface water supply through reservoir development.

Harker said Ohio's rainfall, averaging 37.93 inches annually, was adequate for general needs provided adequate supplies were stored in reservoirs to carry users over drought periods.

He estimated that a good thaw would produce enough water in streams to alleviate present reservoir shortages.

FIVE SOLDIERS STAY TOGETHER SINCE INDUCTION

Train Together, Go Overseas
Together, Invade France
Together on D-Day

When a quintet of home town boys has been together in the army for three years—that's something. When those five boys are Fayette Countians, it's really something.

That's exactly what has happened to five Fayette County boys, though. They have been in the same outfit since they were inducted December 12, 1942, to now when they are in France.

The boys are Pfc. William Bryson, son of Mrs. Viola Bryson, 706 Campbell Street; Pfc. John Mongold, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mongold, route two, Pvt. Raymond Ater, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Ater, Ely Street; Cpl. John Kingery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kingery, Millerville and Cpl. Daniel L. Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wood, 404 East Market Street.

Cpl. Wood wrote the story of their years together to his parents. Told chronologically, it traces the quintet's army training from their induction at Ft. Benjamin Harrison to landing on the Normandy beaches on D-Day up to their present station near Paris.

Almost word for word, Cpl. Wood's story follows:

"This is a little story about five Fayette County soldiers who have gone a long way together since December 12, 1942. It is very unusual for five boys from the same locality to be assigned to the same organization in the U. S. Army and even more unusual for them to remain in the same organization for so long without being separated or transferred to other outfits."

"We were inducted at Columbus on December 12, 1942 and went to Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, a reception center. There we were assigned to the 785th Military Police Battalion which was being activated at Ft. Custer, Michigan. We arrived at Ft. Custer December 23, 1942 and started our 13 weeks basic training January 2, 1943. Upon completion of our basic the battalion was assigned to a California port for security guard duty on piers, warehouses and army transports..."

"We remained there until January 10, 1944, when we moved to Camp Anza, California, for extended field training. In March, 1944, we were sent to Ft. Custer for preparatory overseas training. We had a strenuous training schedule for five months and finally got our overseas shipping order. We sailed soon after and landed at a northwest port in England. We crossed the English channel to France. We were put ashore on landing craft on one of the beaches used on D-Day.

"From that day until the present there isn't much I can tell of our activities but we are now in a rather large French city not far from Paris. We were in the mud in pup tents for three weeks but now we are billeted in a large building. We have been in Cherbourg, Volognes, Cire, Montrouge, Laval and Rennes.

"This Christmas was our third year away from home but we hope to be home for Christmas in 1945. Letters are great things now so keep that mail busy. We would like to hear from our Fayette County friends."

YANKS IN FOXHOLES PLAN FOR FUTURE

Survey Shows Many Know What They Want To Do

CINCINNATI, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Former college students fighting the war have a pretty good idea of what they want in the way of postwar higher education.

With answers coming from foxholes and battlefronts everywhere, a questionnaire sent by Acting Dean Frank R. Neuffer of the University of Cincinnati Evening College, indicates 98 per cent of 400 former U. of C. students wish to take advantage of the GI Bill of Rights and continue their war-postponed campus work.

Other question included in the survey show that 44.2 per cent were studying engineering; 41.2 per cent business administration; 4.4 medicine, with the remainder in liberal arts, applied arts and other fields.

Of these, 78 per cent said they would like to continue in the same field, 10 per cent said they would not, 11 per cent said they didn't know while 5.7 per cent listed new fields such as engineering, radar, radio-electronics and aeronautics.

Lions To Play at Hillsboro On Friday

Getting ready to go to Hillsboro Friday night for a return game with the only SCO League team they have beaten this season, the Blue Lion basketballers today were in high spirits and full of hopes.

In their third game of the season, on Dec. 8, the Lions made a last minute comeback to take a 27 to 24 decision from the Indians on the floor here. The W.H.S. boys had opened up what seemed for a time to be a safe lead. But the Hillsboro boys came back after the halftime intermission like a whirlwind and not only applied a choking curb on the Lions but went on a scoring spree of their own. Gradually they closed the gap and two minutes before the end they had tied the score at 24-all. Then the Lions, who had been tied up since their first half rampage, suddenly cut loose and racked up a long shot and a toss from the charity line while holding the Indians scoreless.

The Lion coach, J. R. Brammer, said after the game that the boys were not up to such a fast pace for an entire game and that they went in high gear as long as they could and then slowed down as they got tired. He explained that this was as bad been expected and added that his plan was to bring them along slowly to develop their staying powers and physical stamina.

Changes in the Lion lineup and system of play are in prospect for the game at Hillsboro, Brammer indicated. Hitting the high spots, he said Carroll Steele, the fast-breaking forward who has been stalled in the last two games, would be shifted to the pivot position and that Roger Whitmore would move from his center post to take Steele's place at forward.

Lausche also announced: "It is the opinion of members of the commission that totalisators should be installed at commercial race tracks in Ohio."

Totalisators are big and complicated machines that calculate the mutual betting odds automatically while flashing the figures and the number of tickets sold electrically on the board in plain view of the crowd.

The governor said the installation of the "totes" will not be mandatory at small meetings and county fairs but did not specify where the line will be drawn.

Lausche stated the commission will order the installation of the "totes" as soon as the machines become available.

To Study Situation

Four years ago, the State Senator Grant P. Ward introduced a bill in the legislature that included compulsory use of totalisators on Ohio tracks but it was defeated on the floor of the Senate.

At that time, most of the race track operators in the state said that the rental cost of the "totes" made their use prohibitive. It was pointed out that power to make the "totes" compulsory was vested in the commission, anyway.

Lausche announced, too, that the commission agreed "the revenue realized by the state from racing is not adequate." The governor said that members of the commission will make a study and report to him what in their opinion the state's revenue should be.

No Changes In API Loop

With just half the teams in the API Women's League present Wednesday night, no drastic changes were made in the standings.

The Flying Fortresses scored a two out of three victory over the Aeronauts. After the Aeronauts took the first game, the Fortresses hit their stride and grabbed the last two.

In the Helicopter-Owl match, it was the same story, with the Helicopters winning the first game and the Owls taking the last two.

The P-38 Gliders and Bombers-Grenadiers matches, scheduled on the Main Street Alleys Wednesday, are postponed.

Wood, duration National Open champion, had a 69—two under par—in a practice round yesterday to lead tune-up play.

But no score has come within hailing distance of a 64 turned in by Nelson in his first tune-up round.

AMERICAN INGENUITY IS AT ITS BEST AT FRONT AS THESE TALES REVEAL

After finding the breaks, Holata discovered that he had no repair tools... So he skinned the wires with his teeth... Back in headquarters Holata asked the supply sergeant for a set of wiremen's tools or a new set of teeth.

When an 88 shell hit his well fortified foxhole, Pvt. Eugene W. Davis flew 20 yards through the war.

Their lives were saved when the liquid failed to ignite... "But the stuff smelled so bad I could hardly stand it," said the tank commander, S-Sgt. Norman K. Crisler of East St. Louis, Ill.

They call the crew of one American tank "Stinky"... The crew and its tank were sprayed by an evil smelling liquid shot by a German flamethrower... Their lives were saved when the liquid failed to ignite.

The committee will be armed with figures and statistics, including a finding that car and bus riding in Cleveland has increased 40 percent during wartime with no commensurate increase in mileage.

BECK INDICTED ON TWO COUNTS; PLEADS JAN. 30

Charged With First Degree Murder and Robbery
Of Bernie Beel

Karl H. Beck, 47, former Washington C. H. man, was indicted on a first degree murder count with a count for robbery in the slaying and robbery of Bernie Beel on a lonely road two miles north of Lebanon the night of October 24.

The indictment was returned late Wednesday by the Warren County grand jury at Lebanon, after the jury had been in recess for some two weeks following a five day investigation of the murder of Beel, also a former Washington C. H. man.

Beel was killed as he sat in his truck on a by road about 8:30 to 9 P. M. the night of October 24, when his assassin snatched him through the head and robbed him of a valuable diamond ring.

Beck, who will be arraigned to plead to the charge on January 30, was suspected because he had fleeced Beel out of $69 a day or two before the crime, on a fake liquor transaction in which he had "borrowed" the money to obtain shipment of a truck load of "Canadian liquor," which he reported had broken down.

Beck has admitted using the story many times to obtain money.

He will be arraigned at 10 A. M. Tuesday, before Judge Alton F. Brown of Warren County.

Beck, who had spent the better part of 20 years in the Ohio penitentiary for a series of bad checks, was released from the institution last April, and was in this city on Sunday before the crime was committed on Tuesday night, and he had admitted being with Beel up to an early hour on Monday before the crime.

Beck is still in the Clinton County jail for sale keeping.

KROGER CO. PLANS TRIBUTE TO EMPLOYEES IN SERVICE

Special tribute will be paid its 6,032 employees in the armed services by the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company, January 20 to 30, over a network of 27 radio stations. Musical numbers and special message by stars playing in the company's radio programs will feature the 15-minute broadcast.

COUNCIL MEETING WAS VERY BRIEF

No Business Is Transacted
Wednesday Night

Wednesday night's regular session of City Council proved a very brief one, with no business transacted.

In addition to reading and approval of the minutes, Council heard a brief report made by City Manager W. L. Stambaugh in which he spoke of removal of ice from streets, and using all salt obtained from the limited supply.

Stambaugh also stated that the report on the proposal to submit a plan for furnishing fire protection for Union Township farm property, was not ready, due to bad condition of highways that had prevented visits to other cities to obtain data where such a plan is being used.

VETERAN BOMBER GETS NEW CLUSTER

Sgt. Robert Haynes on Score
Of Missions

(Special to the Record-Herald)
AN EIGHTH AIR FORCE
BOMBER STATION, England—
Technical Sgt. Robert L. Haynes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey L. Haynes, of 115 East Paint Street, Washington C. H. has been awarded a third Oak Leaf Cluster to his Air Medal, it was recently announced by the commanding general, Eighth Air Force.

Sgt. Haynes is the top turret gunner-engineer of a B-17 Flying Fortress, and is a veteran of more than a score of the Eighth Air Force's huge daylight precision bombing assaults against the Nazi war machine. He has participated in the bombing offensive against the Reich's transportation arteries at Kassel, Hamm, Cologne and Frankfurt, all of which were carried out with excellent results and greatly aided our ground forces, his commanding officer said. He has also taken part in the bombing assaults against the enemy's oil centers at Hamburg, Positz and Mersburg, which greatly reduced the enemy's oil supply for the German Army and the rapidly dwindling Luftwaffe.

Prior to his entry into the Army Air Forces in 1941, Sgt. Haynes was a student at Washington High School.

David Lawson Haines was named leader of the contingent.

Included in the group were four volunteers for immediate induction.

One of the volunteers was 32 years of age and the others included some farmers as well as others in various walks of life. Some were married and some single.

DENVER DETILLION NOW IN HOSPITAL

Pfc. Robert McCoy Writes
About Christmas Dinner

Pfc. Denver Detillion, son of Mrs. William C. Dawes, 1033 South Main Street, today is in a hospital in England.

His mother believes he may be having some trouble with his eyes for the 23-year-old infantryman has worn glasses since he was six years old. Mrs. Dawes said she knew he had been without glasses since September.

Whether or not those glasses were broken when Pfc. Detillion played dead among a flock of German riflemen she doesn't know. Pfc. Detillion was trapped in swamp and feigned death while German riflemen walked near him and kicked other bodies to see if they were alive. He held his breath while one of the Nazis kicked a companion lying nearby. The other Yank cried out in pain and was taken prisoner. Several times Detillion was scratched by shell fragments from American shells. Finally, just as dawn was breaking, the Germans left the area and Detillion made his way back to his own lines.

Pfc. Detillion entered service October 9, 1942 and has been overseas since April.

A clipping from Stars and Stripes, telling of the trick Pfc. Detillion played on the Germans, has just been received by Mr. and Mrs. H. R. McCoy of the Leesburg Road, in a letter from their son, Pvt. Robert McCoy.

Although the two Fayette County boys were not together overseas, the little item about a home town soldier attracted his attention.

Pvt. McCoy, who had 11 months training at Camp Crowder, Mo., before he went overseas, was with a replacement company stationed at Nancy, France, when he wrote. His letter told about his Christmas dinner with some friends he had made—a Mr. and Mrs. George Colomber—at Sens, France. For dinner, he wrote they had "everything from roast duck to ice cream and cake" and added that he had a swell time.

Three hundred letters were sent to Fayette Countians asking for special contributions. Of those, 22 returns have been tabulated with a total gift of $113, Van Voorhis said.

He again pointed out that half the money contributed to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis remains in Fayette County to treat polio victims who live here.

CENTERLESS GRIND IS FOREMEN TOPIC

Melhope Discusses Method
Wednesday Night

The first in-between meeting of the Foremen's Club, held Wednesday in the Hotel Washington, was termed a success. The object of the meetings is to bring specialists in various phases of manufacturing for educational sessions.

L. E. Melhope, development engineer for the Cincinnati Milling and Grinding Machines, Inc., was the speaker Wednesday. He traced the history of the centerless grinder from the days when it could make only round objects with no size control to the present machine which can grind 10 millionths of an inch with a mirror finish and multiple dimensions on one piece.

To put high polish on bowling and billiard balls, the piece is rotated between a swift carbon-dum wheel and a slower fiber compound wheel going in the opposite direction, Melhope said.

In grinding different contours, Melhope told of utilizing crusher rollers instead of diamond wheels for truing grinding wheels.

J. E. Lynch, field engineer, and Norman Foos, production engineer, both participated in a round table discussion after the meeting.

Cadet Midshipman John Fortney, son of Mrs. J. L. Fortney of the Jeffersonville road, has arrived safely in the South Pacific aboard a merchant marine cargo vessel, his mother has learned through letters from her son.

Sgt. Ralph W. ("Rowdy") Hyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chan Hyer, 618 E. Temple Street, arrived here at the home of his parents early Wednesday morning to spend a 21 day furlough with his parents, after 31 months overseas duty in the African and European theater of war.

He reports after his furlough to Camp Santa Anita, Calif., for a rest period before being reassigned.

HEADQUARTERS, 13th AAF, Southwest Pacific—Flying in support of our ground forces fighting on Leyte Island in the Philippines. Staff Sergeant Kenneth N. Foster of Good Hope, youthful assistant engineer in the "Bomber Barons" of the 13th AAF has participated in six attacks against strongly fortified enemy airfields and installations on the nearby islands of Cebu, Negros and Mindanao.

Destroying Jap fighters and bombers on the ground and firing vital supply dumps and gasoline storage facilities, Sergeant Foster has contributed greatly to the impeding of the important Japanese defense positions in the Philippines.
